

The culinary school features a 'greenhouse promenade', which is a vegetation library that is represented as a grand walkway spanning through three levels. Here students can learn from fresh ingredients and produce that will be used for their cooking courses. A catalog of nutritional facts are given to students to the plants, which are organized into three main areas which are vegetables, herbs, and wheats.

Classrooms with easy access to Greenhouse Promenade

